

Map People Hunt Game
(Diane Butler and Anita McKean, Area V)

Editor's Note: This activity was presented as an icebreaker at the Area V conference. It could be used at a chapter meeting or in a different area with a map of the local community. The map of the Area 5 chapters which was used is included as an example on the next page.

Game Objectives:

1. To offer an opportunity for women to get out of their seats and mingle with other DKG members
2. To offer an opportunity to visualize the size, location and names of all the Chapters within Area V (This can be done with a different Area or at a Chapter meeting focusing on cities where members live or teach.)
3. To recognize the working DKG attendees

Activity Steps:

1. Women were given a California map on an 8.5 x 11" sheet of paper with Area Chapter names and location of each Chapter in Area V labeled
2. Working educators were asked to stand and be recognized before the game began.
3. Chapter members usually sit together at Area events, so someone from each Chapter stood to identify their starting location.
4. The goal was for women within 5-7 minutes to circulate the room to obtain 2 signatures from each Chapter. (Note: This was difficult for anyone in a wheel chair, but members came to them to obtain their signature.)
5. All completed sheets were collected and prizes were given for completed sheets.

Future Suggestions:

- This activity could be used at a chapter meeting in which members are to find people that work in various districts or live in various cities. The map could be of the local area.
- One suggestion is to have three signature lines behind each Chapter location.
- Have one signature line highlighted to designate where a working educator is to sign
- Non-highlighted lines could be for retired members to sign.

When this activity was presented at the Area V Conference, many members of the California State Leadership Team were present and members were asked to find two people from each Chapter and two people from the California State Organization Leadership Team.

Area V Chapters

